CONGRESS STARTS JOB READJUSTING TARIFF

HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE BUSY

SEVEN WEEKS OF HEARINGS TO BE HELD BEFORE THAT BODY

AMERICAN CHEMICAL MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY IS FIRST PETITIONER

Washington, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Congress today started the arduous job of "readjusting" the tariff, with the opening of seven weeks of hearings before the house ways and means committee.

The American Chemical Manufacturing industry, claiming to represent $5,000,000,000 of capital, was the first petitioner, its spokesmen pleading for an increase from 25 to 40 per cent import duty on unclassified chemicals.

Chairman Hawley of the committee made a short statement outlining procedure, emphasizing the hearings were on "propositions to adjust tariff schedules and the taking of testimony on chemical schedules."

First of the 15 classifications were discussed by Salmon W. Wilder, Boston, chairman of the United States Manufacturing Chemists' Association. Chemicals have been allotted three days.

Wilder praised the 1922 protective tariff act and asserted the experience of several years has shown some rates are inadequate. He discussed the European government-fostered cartels controlling prices and promoting combinations of America's competitors in the interest of lower prices for imports.

Washington, Jan. 7. — Reapportionment legislation will be given the right of way on the floor of the house on January 10, the house steering committee decided today.

A majority of the members of the committee attended the conference today and agreed a special rule should be reported to take immediate action on the legislation possible.

FIRE DESTROYS GARY M.E. CHURCH AT WHEATON, ILL.

Wheaton, Ill., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Fire today destroyed the Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, a $50,000 structure which the late Elbert H. Gary, former chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, erected in memory of his father and mother. An overheated furnace was believed to have started the fire, which was fanned by a high wind.

3 SUITS AGAINST GOVERNMENT ARE DENIED REVIEWS

Washington, Jan. 7. — (UP) — Three suits for $100,000 damages against the government, brought by estates of three naval officers who died in the sinking of the submarine S-51 off Block Island in 1925, today were denied reviews by the U. S. supreme court. The novel attempts to sue the government under a 1920 law authorizing libels for damages caused by public vessels were unsuccessful in lower courts.

JOBLESS MAN KILLS SELF AND 3 LITTLE ONES WITH GAS

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Jobless, deserted by his wife and out of money, Fred Breer, 30, tucked his three children into bed Christmas night and opened the gas jets.

The four frozen bodies were found by neighbors who instituted a search after the family had not been seen for two weeks.

Mrs. Breer is said to have deserted her family for another man two days before Christmas.

PLAYFUL CHILD IS BLAMED FOR DEATH OF FIVE PEOPLE

Fresno, Calif., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—A child's playfulness was blamed today for the death of William Brooks, 30, his wife and their three children by gas here yesterday. Four burners of a gas stove were found turned on following discovery of the tragedy.

Cold Blast From Northwest Howls Over America

TAX REFUND OF $26,000,000 TO U.S. STEEL CORPORATION

Washington, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—The United States Steel corporation, one of the world's largest industrial concerns, will receive from the Federal Reserve Bank in New York today a check for $26,000,000. Transfer of the check is a return to the steel corporation money it paid to the treasury department in excess of the taxes legally due. It is the largest tax refund ever made by the treasury.

QUESTION MARK MOTORS NOW UNDER STRAIN

ARMY PLANE IS APPROACHING SEVENTH DAY OF ITS FLIGHT

WORST OF LAST NIGHT'S MOTOR TROUBLE, HOWEVER, IS PAST

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Men and motors appeared to be laboring under a strain for the first time today as the army monoplane Question Mark approached the seventh day of its record shattering endurance flight over San Fernando valley. However, the worst of last night's motor trouble seemed past and it was believed the flight might last indefinitely. Early today the plane had been in the air 140 hours and all previous records were broken.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 7 — The army plane Question Mark today completed its sixth full day in sustained flight and continued its grind of adding hours to the world's endurance record.

There was nothing to indicate an answer to the question "How long can the Question Mark stay up?" as the ship made its monotonous rounds in the vicinity of Metropolitan airport at Van Nuys.

The motors of the ship apparently were functioning well again but landing orders and the command to remain within easy reach of the home base were given, indicating the crew fears engine failure momentarily.

From the ground it seemed that the motors were speeded up a bit from the original 1500 revolutions and it was certain that the Question Mark was maintaining a higher altitude, probably with intent to provide a greater gliding distance in event of trouble.

By rules of competitive flying the plane must land at Metropolitan field, where the take-off was made Tuesday morning else the all-time marks broken will not be credited.

At 7:26:45 A. M. the Question Mark completed its sixth day and 144th consecutive hour in the air. At that time it had exceeded by 26 hours the best previous sustained flight record of 118 hours, set by the dirigible Dixmude.

The tri-motored ship was refueled for the 31st time shortly after dawn when 180 gallons of gasoline were transferred in a seven-minute contact, made without incident.

Even in event of bad weather the Question Mark will not venture from the San Fernando valley near the Van Nuys airport, Major Spatz said in a note to field officials. Rather, it will fight the elements as best it can and land when conditions become impossible.

By this decision the Question Mark gave up every hope of breaking distance flight records. Averaging 70 miles an hour for its time in the air the plane actually has travelled in excess of 9,000 miles. Since turns over a measured course are required for distance competitive flying, the ship is credited now with only 2,821.1 miles.

The distance record, therefore, will remain to the credit of Capt. Ferrarin and Major Del Pete who flew fom Italy to Port Natal, Brazil, 4,417 miles.

The five men, Major Spatz, Capt. Ira Eaker, Lts. A. H. Halverson and Elwood Quesada and Sergt. Roy Hooe, have been deafened temporarily by the roar of the motors and are suffering considerably from the cold.

Minneapolis, Jan. 7. — (UP) — Two youths, one of whom was said to have been captured during an attempted burglary, confessed, police declared, that they had robbed 18 Minneapolis homes during the last two weeks. Both will be charged with burglary.

Senate Still In Hot Dispute Over Kellogg Anti-War Treaty, High Powered Opposition

CUDGELS ARE TAKEN UP AGAINST TREATY TODAY

COMPROMISE SOLUTION IS OFFERED BY SEN. JAMES. E. WATSON

PROPOSES WRITING IN RESERVATION OF MOSES-REED RESOLUTION

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 7—Negotiations seeking to end the senate's hot dispute over the Kellogg anti-war treaty with a compromise undertaken by senate leaders over the week-end, accomplished nothing, and the small but high powered opposition took up the cudgel against the pact again today.

The compromise solution was offered by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana. He proposed the reservation as embodied in the Moses-Reed resolution be written into an official report by the foreign relations committee.

Watson's idea was that the foreign relations committee go on record as to its interpretation of the treaty. Thus the administration would be saved from an embarrassing vote on the interpretative Reed-Moses resolution, which excepts American foreign policies from the treaty.

Chairman Borah, who is championing the treaty, was agreeable enough to such a course "if it would speed up a vote on the treaty." But the opposition leaders frowned on the scheme. They felt that a report would not have a sufficiently official tinge.

The report proposed by Watson would embody statements that the Monroe Doctrine, as an essential part of American self defense, would not in any way be affected by the treaty. It would point out the United States assumed no obligations for coercive enforcement of the pact and specify particularly that each nation could decide for itself what its own self defense would be.

These are the same ideas embodied in the Reed-Moses resolution. If the agreement can be effected the treaty can be ratified without further argument and the senate can turn its attention to the naval cruiser building bill.

While the matter was occupying the attention of the leaders, the rest of the senate was spending its usual busy Monday. The judiciary committee took up the two resolutions proposing investigation of prohibition to refer them to a sub-committee.

Tariff revision hearings, which will last last several weeks, were started by the house ways and means committee.

The house wrestled with the first deficiency and the war department appropriation bills.

NEW TRIAL IS GOAL OF LAWYERS FOR COUPLE

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF WEEK'S STAY OF EXECUTION GRANTED BY COURT

Franklin, La., Jan. 7.—(UP) — A new trial for Mrs. Ada Banner LeBoeuf and Dr. Thomas Dreher, condemned murderers of Mrs. LeBouef's husband, James, was the goal of defense attorneys today.

Taking advantage of the week's stay of execution granted by the state supreme court Saturday, defense counsel announced they had uncovered new evidence indicating that the illicit lovers were convicted by a jury intimidated by threats of mob violence.

Ten jurors were said to have made affidavits to the effect that they would not have recommended the death penalty for the defendants if they had not been afraid of a mob which gathered at the time of the trial.

If the move is successful the hanging date, originally set for last Saturday, may be advanced several months or cancelled altogether.

Failing in their attempt to obtain a new trial, defense attorneys believe they can prove that Mrs. LeBoeuf and the physician were insane when they murdered Mrs. LeBoeuf's husband.

HOPE OF ALL CZARIST EXILES PASSES AWAY

GRAND DUKE NICHOLS, SECOND COUSIN OF LATE CZAR, CALLED IN DEATH

BODY LIES IN STATE AT ANTIBES, FRANCE, UNTIL FUNERAL TOMORROW

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Antibes, France, Jan. 7—Resplendent in the full garb of an officer of the Caucasian Cossacks, the body of Grand Duke Nicholas, second cousin of the late czar, was placed today upon a splendid bier to lie in state until the funeral tomorrow.

The last magnificent gesture of royalty, back to whose effulgence Nicholas had hoped to lead the Romanoffs, is his in death. The hopes of all czarist exiles, for resurrection of the monarchy, lie here in the red velour draped room, lighted only by flickering candles. Two armed Cossacks maintain their vigil beside the body, as a hidden door somewhere opens to permit the entry of grief stricken patriots of a foreign land paying their last measure of homage and tribute.

Tomorrow the body will be transported to the Russian cathedral at Cannes for the funeral service. The burial place has not yet been selected.

The grand duke's death occurred Saturday at 9:45 P. M. after two heart attacks which came within a few hours. He had but recently deserted his little villa outside of Paris to go to the Riviera seeking a milder winter.

The archimantrite theodose recited the death prayer as life ebbed away, with members of the grand duke's family and intimate friends at his bedside.

Paris, Jan. 7.—The Soviet embassy, commenting on the death of Grand Duke Nicholas, issued a statement to the United Press in which it was declared that "the last vestiges of Russian monarchy have been removed."

DYNAMITE BLAST WRECKS HOME

THREE BABIES AND YOUNG MAN LOSE LIVES IN FIRE

Hartshorne, Okla., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Three babies and a young man lost their lives here last night in the fire that destroyed the home of Ben Cales, Hartshorne foundry owner. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cales, were injured in escaping from the flaming house. Albert Wilkets, 23, a roomer at the home, was the fourth person to lose his life.

HOOVER IS HOME FROM HIS LATIN AMERICAN TOUR

OPENS HEADQUARTERS IN MAYFLOWER HOTEL AT WASHINGTON

BEGINS MISSION WILL CALL TODAY ON PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 7. — President-elect Hoover, home from his Latin-American good-will tour, opened his headquarters here today in the Mayflower hotel, five blocks from the White House, for a brief but busy stay in the scene of his future presidential activities.

He was to begin his mission with a call today on President Coolidge, to whom he will report on his Latin-American visit.

He also will look forward to March 4 in a conference with the local inauguration committee, with whom he will discuss plans for the ceremony. Hoover is determined that it be a very simple one.

The first of official friends, political lieutenants and congressional leaders began their visits to the next president today, attempting to find out his plans regarding his cabinet, administration, and handling of the major issues such as farm relief and prohibition.

Hoover virtually has completed his cabinet slate, it is understood, its final form depending upon conferences here. It is doubtful if he will make any immediate announcements, however.

Attention centered today about his White House visit with President Coolidge. One of the matters they may consider involves a second proposed good-will tour to the West Indies.

Hoover, it was understood, also will clear up today any misunderstanding regarding his interview with President Irigoyen of Argentina. A published account of the interview was interpreted as criticism of President Coolidge's Nicaraguan policy.

Hoover returned to the capital quietly yesterday afternoon, without ceremony. Characteristically, he threaded his way quickly through a small crowd at Union Station, pausing only a few moments after he stepped from his special train to shake hands with Dr. Hubert Work, who headed a welcoming delegation.

Hoover was first of his party to alight from the train. He was followed by Mrs. Hoover, Allan and Herbert, Jr., who met his mother and father at Old Point Comfort.

The Hoover family was re-united only briefly. Allan left last night for Palo Alto, California, where he will resume his studies. He will return here for his father's "commencement," as he describes it, on March 4.

$2,000 FIRE AT WILLMAR TODAY

Willmar, Jan. 7—(U.P.)—Hampered by sub-zero temperatures firemen here today fought a blaze which partially destroyed the Bartles-Scott Oil company office building around 8 a. m.

Damage to the structure and office equipment was estimated at $2,000.

Origin of the fire was unknown.

REBEL TRIBESMEN CAPTURE FORT IN AFGHANISTAN

Calcutta, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—A message received today by airplane from Kabul said rebel tribesmen had captured a fort four miles from the city and were shelling the capital, using captured Afghan artillery.

POUNDS MERCURY DOWN TO THIRTY DEGREES BELOW

INDICATIONS OF STILL COLDER WEATHER ARE IN PROSPECT

TRAINS AND BUSSES OPERATED ON DELAYED SCHEDULES

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—A piercing northwest wind howled across western Canada and the United States today, pounding the mercury down to 30 degrees below zero and there were indications that still colder weather was in prospect.

At Prince Albert the temperature was 30 degrees below zero. Saskatoon reported 24 below while Winnipeg and Regina were only one degree less cold.

In the Twin Cities the mercury fell to 17 degrees below zero at 8 A. M. and weather men predicted further drop before the frigid wave, which has persisted for 20 hours, is expected to end.

Trains and busses were operated on delayed schedules but the mail planes "carried on."

Many of the western trains lost as much as one hour and the bus lines between the Twin Cities and Chicago abandoned operations temporarily. Roads were reported virtually blocked with drifted snow in southern Minnesota and western Wisconsin.

There were few motor mishaps since the biting cold kept the great majority of car owners close to their firesides. One child, however was killed near Minneapolis when the car in which she was riding skidded and crashed into a bus.

Two deaths and several injuries in the Twin Cities district were attributable to the cold. Mrs. O. H. Chader, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Alexander A. Kennedy, Spring Park, were fatally injured in separate automobile accidents caused by icy pavements.

Moorhead with 26 degrees below zero was one of the coldest, if not the coldest, spots in the state.

Little Falls shivered in 20 degrees below zero after 23 below had been recorded during the night.

Two persons were badly frozen early today in Minneapolis. An unidentified woman, about 40, was found unconscious near the Hennepin avenue bridge. She was without headcovering or overshoes and was taken by a motorist to General hospital where her condition was said to be serious. Carl Olson, 34, had his hands and feet frozen while waiting for a street car.

The head-of-the-lakes and the iron range reported the coldest weather of the season today. At Duluth it was 22 below zero at 7 A. M. and the forecast indicated additional drops tonight and tomorrow. On the iron range the mercury is expected to touch 25 below before the present wave is broken.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Temperatures as low as eight degrees below zero in many parts of the Chicago forecast area were predicted for tonight by the government weather bureau here. At Minneapolis and St. Paul the mercury today had dropped to 17 degrees below zero and was still going down. United Press reports from the middle and southwest showed 20 deaths attributable to the abnormally cold weather. Highways in many states were clogged by snowdrifts.

Medicine Hat, Sask., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Medicine Hat—the reputed birthplace of storms, blizzards, cyclones and such—laughed at the shivering outside world today and "basked" in temperatures well above zero.

While during the past 24 hours, Minnesota staggered teary-eyed through biting gales and 32 below zero weather, Medicine Hat skipped about at 14 degrees above zero.

A movement may yet be started here urging America to "come to Medicine Hat for the winter."

Hoover returned to the capital quietly yesterday afternoon, without ceremony. Characteristically, he threaded his way quickly through a small crowd at Union Station, pausing only a few moments after he stepped from his special train to shake hands with Dr. Hubert Work, who headed a welcoming delegation.

Hoover was first of his party to alight from the train. He was followed by Mrs. Hoover, Allan and Herbert, Jr., who met his mother and father at Old Point Comfort.

The Hoover family was re-united only briefly. Allan left last night for Palo Alto, California, where he will resume his studies. He will return here for his father's "commencement," as he describes it, on March 4.

$2,000 FIRE AT WILLMAR TODAY

Willmar, Jan. 7—(U.P.)—Hampered by sub-zero temperatures firemen here today fought a blaze which partially destroyed the Bartles-Scott Oil company office building around 8 a. m.

Damage to the structure and office equipment was estimated at $2,000.

Origin of the fire was unknown.

POUNDS MERCURY DOWN TO THIRTY DEGREES BELOW

TRAINS AND BUSSES OPERATED ON DELAYED SCHEDULES

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—A piercing northwest wind howled across western Canada and the United States today, pounding the mercury down to 30 degrees below zero and there were indications that still colder weather was in prospect.

At Prince Albert the temperature was 30 degrees below zero. Saskatoon reported 24 below while Winnipeg and Regina were only one degree less cold.

In the Twin Cities the mercury fell to 17 degrees below zero at 8 A. M. and weather men predicted further drop before the frigid wave, which has persisted for 20 hours, is expected to end.

Trains and busses were operated on delayed schedules but the mail planes "carried on."

Many of the western trains lost as much as one hour and the bus lines between the Twin Cities and Chicago abandoned operations temporarily. Roads were reported virtually blocked with drifted snow in southern Minnesota and western Wisconsin.

There were few motor mishaps since the biting cold kept the great majority of car owners close to their firesides. One child, however was killed near Minneapolis when the car in which she was riding skidded and crashed into a bus.

Two deaths and several injuries in the Twin Cities district were attributable to the cold. Mrs. O. H. Chader, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Alexander A. Kennedy, Spring Park, were fatally injured in separate automobile accidents caused by icy pavements.

Moorhead with 26 degrees below zero was one of the coldest, if not the coldest, spots in the state.

Little Falls shivered in 20 degrees below zero after 23 below had been recorded during the night.

Two persons were badly frozen early today in Minneapolis. An unidentified woman, about 40, was found unconscious near the Hennepin avenue bridge. She was without headcovering or overshoes and was taken by a motorist to General hospital where her condition was said to be serious. Carl Olson, 34, had his hands and feet frozen while waiting for a street car.

The head-of-the-lakes and the iron range reported the coldest weather of the season today. At Duluth it was 22 below zero at 7 A. M. and the forecast indicated additional drops tonight and tomorrow. On the iron range the mercury is expected to touch 25 below before the present wave is broken.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Temperatures as low as eight degrees below zero in many parts of the Chicago forecast area were predicted for tonight by the government weather bureau here. At Minneapolis and St. Paul the mercury today had dropped to 17 degrees below zero and was still going down. United Press reports from the middle and southwest showed 20 deaths attributable to the abnormally cold weather. Highways in many states were clogged by snowdrifts.

While during the past 24 hours, Minnesota staggered teary-eyed through biting gales and 32 below zero weather, Medicine Hat skipped about at 14 degrees above zero.

A movement may yet be started here urging America to "come to Medicine Hat for the winter."

TREASURY HAS HANDSOME NET BALANCE ON HAND

E. A. GREEN RITES HERE TOMORROW

Former Brainerd Man Passed Away at Flint, Mich., on Way South

SERVED IN FRANCE

Was in Employ of Northern Pacific for 25 Years as Locomotive Engineer

E. A. Green will be buried tomorrow afternoon at 2 P. M. from the Whitney undertaking parlors. A combined military and Masonic funeral will be held.

Mr. Green was born in Brainerd, making his nome here for several years. He is the son of Mrs. Alice J. Green, formerly of Brainerd, but now making her home with her daughter, Mrs. P. T. Boleyn at Fargo. He was 43 years old. Mr. Green had been stationed at Dilworth, Minn., but was a patient in the Ft. Snelling Veterans hospital for the last couple years.. He died at Flint, Mich., from heart complications on Friday afternoon on his way south. A brother, B. H. Green of Detroit, Mich., will arrive at 1:20 P. M. today with the body.

He was a member of the Blue Lodge, Scottish Rite Shrine El Zagel at Fargo and of the American Legion and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Fremen. He was a locomotive engineer for the N. P., having worked about 25 years for the company and was in their employ until he went to the Ft. Snelling Veterans hospital two years ago.

He leaves two brothers, B. H. Green of Detroit, Mich.; G. H. Green of Morson, Ontario; his mother, Mrs. Alice J. Green, Fargo; and three sisters, Mrs. P. T. Boleyn, Fargo; Mrs. E. E. Hewitt and Miss Katherine Green of New York City. His father died 15 years ago.

During the war Mr. Green was in France 18 months, with the 21st engineers.

Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

FARM HOUSE LOST IN FIRE

Dick Sagli Home Was Burned Down About 11:30 O'Clock Saturday Night

The farm home of Dick Sagli, farmer near Brainerd, was burned down on Saturday about 11:30 o'clock at night. The family were in bed and asleep when the first started and one of the members awoke and discovered the fire which seemed to b mostly in the eaves and roof. He awakened the rest of the family, and all escaped uninjured.

The fire had such a headway before being discovered that they were unable to quench the flames, but succeeded in removing some of the furniture in the lower part of the house. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

Confesses Killing

Because he felt attentions of Frank A. Bartley, 42, wealthy dairyman, would cause his mother to leave his father, Ray Kilgore (above), 22, and a graduate of Stanford University, shot and killed him in his home at El Centro, Cal. Then he walked over to sheriff's office and gave himself up.

Not Asking

Ellen often visits the childless lady next door, who has a conspicuous candy jar on her buffet. The child had been permitted to call on the neighbor, with a promise that she would not ask for candy. After a time the little miss spied the tempting jar, brimming full, and said: "You have a pretty full jar of candy. I can't ask for any today, but I will eat all you give me."

Pollution Fatal to Fish

It has been pointed out that the visible pollution, the waste matter which floats in the river, covering its surface with an oily scum, is not what drives away the better class of fishes. It is the slowly accumulating slimy covering of the stream bed that is fatal to the fish. This kills all insect growth, thus making it impossible for the young of the fish to live, which kills off the fish even if the mature ones can live partly on the sewage.

The cost of the organ is $2,400.

375,000 Jars Vicks Now Produced Every 24 Hours

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt responses to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks VapoRub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts. The present output is more than 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing, ad

John Hancock's signature

You have heard of him, of course. Everyone has. His signature is the first affixed, the most boldly executed, on the Declaration of Independence.

When that great document was drawn up and ready to sign, there was a pause. It was a moment of grave importance to all present. By placing their signatures on this paper, they would put themselves on record as avowed rebels against the British crown—a hanging offense. At this juncture John Hancock stood up, seized the pen, and wrote his name on the parchment as large and black as he could. By this act he advertised to the world that he stood ready to make any sacrifice—even life itself—in support of his principles and ideals. His signature afforded a permanent record of his good faith.

Advertisers who go to great expense to place before the public printed announcements of their products are offering similar evidences of good faith, equal guarantees of fair dealing. Advertised goods are reputable, dependable, vouched for by manufacturers and dealers who are known and respected. By reading the advertising in this paper you will acquaint yourself with the safest and most economical sources of supply, the products which will serve you best and longest. Advertisements are the surest index to efficient buying. Do not neglect them.

Advertising is the guarantee of good faith

Boleyn at Fargo. He was 43 years old. Mr. Green had been stationed at Dilworth, Minn., but was a patient in the Ft. Snelling Veterans hospital for the last couple years.. He died at Flint, Mich., from heart complications on Friday afternoon on his way south. A brother, B. H. Green of Detroit, Mich., will arrive at 1:20 P. M. today with the body.

He was a member of the Blue Lodge, Scottish Rite Shrine El Zagel at Fargo and of the American Legion and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Fremen. He was a locomotive engineer for the N. P., having worked about 25 years for the company and was in their employ until he went to the Ft. Snelling Veterans hospital two years ago.

He leaves two brothers, B. H. Green of Detroit, Mich.; G. H. Green of Morson, Ontario; his mother, Mrs. Alice J. Green, Fargo; and three sisters, Mrs. P. T. Boleyn, Fargo; Mrs. E. E. Hewitt and Miss Katherine Green of New York City. His father died 15 years ago.

During the war Mr. Green was in France 18 months, with the 21st engineers.

Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

FARM HOUSE LOST IN FIRE

Dick Sagli Home Was Burned Down About 11:30 O'Clock Saturday Night

The farm home of Dick Sagli, farmer near Brainerd, was burned down on Saturday about 11:30 o'clock at night. The family were in bed and asleep when the first started and one of the members awoke and discovered the fire which seemed to b mostly in the eaves and roof. He awakened the rest of the family, and all escaped uninjured.

The fire had such a headway before being discovered that they were unable to quench the flames, but succeeded in removing some of the furniture in the lower part of the house. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

Confesses Killing

Because he felt attentions of Frank A. Bartley, 42, wealthy dairyman, would cause his mother to leave his father, Ray Kilgore (above), 22, and a graduate of Stanford University, shot and killed him in his home at El Centro, Cal. Then he walked over to sheriff's office and gave himself up.

Not Asking

Ellen often visits the childless lady next door, who has a conspicuous candy jar on her buffet. The child had been permitted to call on the neighbor, with a promise that she would not ask for candy. After a time the little miss spied the tempting jar, brimming full, and said: "You have a pretty full jar of candy. I can't ask for any today, but I will eat all you give me."

Pollution Fatal to Fish

It has been pointed out that the visible pollution, the waste matter which floats in the river, covering its surface with an oily scum, is not what drives away the better class of fishes. It is the slowly accumulating slimy covering of the stream bed that is fatal to the fish. This kills all insect growth, thus making it impossible for the young of the fish to live, which kills off the fish even if the mature ones can live partly on the sewage.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

January 7, 1904

Miss Cora Davis left today for St. Paul on a few days visit.

Sheriff George Hardy of Walker, is in the city today on business.

Miss May Trent left this noon for Morris for a visit with friends and relatives for a short time.

Mrs. Clyde Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., arrived in the city today for a visit with her brother, Harry Titus, of East Brainerd.

The barber shop of J. H. Welliver has been thoroughly overhauled and Mr. Welliver has made some extensive improvements. A new bath room has been provided for the patrons of the place and a steam heating plant has been installed. Mr. Welliver expects to make improvements from time to time until his parlors will be of as high a standard as anything in the northern part of the state.

R. R. Wise returned from a business trip east this afternoon.

Supt. C. I. McNair, of the Northwest Paper Company, came in from Cloquet on business this afternoon.

F. J. Peck, of Grand Forks, who has been in the city for a few days visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Murray, left this afternoon for his home. He is connected with the circulating department of the Minneapolis Tribune and covers all of northern North Dakota.

Word has been received from the factory by Rev. D. W. Lynch that the new organ for St. Francis church was shipped on December 24. The organ should have been here before this, but has evidently been delayed in transit. The organ will be installed at once on its arrival here, and the job will take some ten days. The cost of the organ is $2,400.

Sincerity Class

The Sincerity class of the Evangelical church will give a 6 o'clock dinner on Tuesday evening in the basement of the church. The regular monthly business meeting will be held after which an interesting program will be given. It is the wish of the committee, that there be a large attendance. Everybody welcome.

375,000 Jars Vicks Now Produced Every 24 Hours

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt responses to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks VapoRub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts. The present output is more than 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing, ad

John Hancock's signature

You have heard of him, of course. Everyone has. His signature is the first affixed, the most boldly executed, on the Declaration of Independence.

When that great document was drawn up and ready to sign, there was a pause. It was a moment of grave importance to all present. By placing their signatures on this paper, they would put themselves on record as avowed rebels against the British crown—a hanging offense. At this juncture John Hancock stood up, seized the pen, and wrote his name on the parchment as large and black as he could. By this act he advertised to the world that he stood ready to make any sacrifice—even life itself—in support of his principles and ideals. His signature afforded a permanent record of his good faith.

Advertisers who go to great expense to place before the public printed announcements of their products are offering similar evidences of good faith, equal guarantees of fair dealing. Advertised goods are reputable, dependable, vouched for by manufacturers and dealers who are known and respected. By reading the advertising in this paper you will acquaint yourself with the safest and most economical sources of supply, the products which will serve you best and longest. Advertisements are the surest index to efficient buying. Do not neglect them.

3 BELIEVERS IN WITCHCRAFT FACING TRIAL

SLAYED NEIGHBOR THEY BELIEVED HAD PUT EVIL SPELL ON THEM

AIR REMINISCENT OF THE DARK AGES HANGING OVER YORK, PA.

York, Pa., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Three men—believers in witchcraft—faced trial for their lives today for the slaying of a neighbor they believed had put an evil spell on them and theirs.

The men are John Blymyer, John Curry and Wilbert Hess who allegedly killed Nelson Rehmyer as part of a rite of casting out a curse they felt Rehmyer put upon them.

There hung over York today an air reminiscent of the dark ages, as the trial preliminaries were reached.

For with unfolding of the strange tale, there came to light the knowledge that in this fruitful valley of eastern Pennsylvania live many who still believe in witchcraft. Some of these folk still talk a corrupted German, and from that tongue they have Anglicized the word "hexed" to mean someone bewitched.

Chickens had died on the Hess farm, hens would not lay, the cows were sick, the family had trouble with relatives, and with a neighbor over a right-of-way.

Blymyer is alleged to have told the Hess family that Rehmeyer, a recluse who studied black arts, and who was distinguished by his great stature and his massive black beard, had cast a spell over the family and farm.

"If we can get a lock of hair from the back of Rehmeyer's head," he is alleged to have said, "the curse will be gone."

It was when Blymeyer, Curry and young Hess attempted to get the lock of hair that Rehmeyer was killed. As a result, York, a historic city, is to be the scene of the first witch trial in America since the days of Cotton Mather.

Although all three have made statements outlining how the attack on Rehmeyer was planned days in advance and have described a brutal beating they administered to him some predicted all will escape the death penalty.

York county, Pennsylvania, has a preponderant sentiment against capital punishment and it has been many years since a court in York ordered a convicted man executed.

WHITTIER PARENT TEACHERS

Speakers Tuesday Evening to be Mrs. W. C. Cobb and City Attorney D. H. Fullerton

The Whittier Parent Teachers association will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, at 7:45 o'clock. After a short business session the members will be given talks by Mrs. W. C. Cobb on the Kellogg Peace Treaty and D. H. Fullerton, city attorney, on "Delinquency in Children."

Musical numbers will consist of a group of piano selections by Miss Lorraine Morrison and a group of songs by A. T. Fishman. Mr. Fishman will be accompanied by Mrs. Louis Knudsen. Refreshments will be served.

NORTHWESTERN R. R. GIVEN AUTHORITY TO ISSUE BONDS

Washington, Jan. 7. — (UP)—Authority to issue $3,577,000 of general mortgage gold bonds was granted the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company today by the interstate commerce commission. The bonds will be used to retire outstanding securities as they become due.

JAIL LAKE

The death angel visited this community Tuesday evening, January 1, and called Mrs. Mary Sweet, death being due to complication of measles. Mrs. Sweet was 45 years old at time of death and leaves to mourn her loss a husband and four sons, Fred, George, Harold and Merton besides a host of friends. Interment was in Piney Ridge cemetery at Pine River Friday at 1 o'clock. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, daughter Ethel and granddaughter little Bertha Peterson called Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martha Glovers.

Mr. and Mrs. White had the misfortune to lose their home and all its contents by fire. Their neighbors kindly assisted them to build a new house and now they reported they are quite as comfortable as before.

Mrs. Ralph Duncan, Mrs. Roy Hardy and Miss Martha Datzman have assisted at the S. E. Sweet home while they have had the measles.

Jack Hundley and Mazel Johnson have been confined to their homes with the measles.

Mrs. Martha Glover, son Leon and grandsons, Donald and Eugene were business visitors in Pine River Saturday.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF MICHIGAN CRIME LAW IS UPHELD

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 7.—The constitutionality of the Michigan criminal code was upheld today when the supreme court affirmed the lower court sentence of Fred Palm, "pint of gin" lifer. Palm was sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act of the criminal code when he pleaded guilty to possession of a pint of gin. Information showing Palm had been convicted of six felonies, making life sentence mandatory under the code.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS FINDS GANGSTERS NOW IN JAIL

POLICE DEPARTMENT UNDER FIRE, LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISPOSSESSED

COMBINATION OF FEDEBAL AND COUNTY AUTHORITIES NOW IN CONTROL

Chicago, Jan. 7. — (UP)—Chicago Heights, built by steel and demoralized by alcohol, awoke today to find its leading gangsters in jail, its police department under fire and its entire local government temporarily dispossessed by a combination of federal and county authorities.

It was the most spectacular raid in the history of Illinois. The town of 25,000 inhabitants, birthplace of gangland and scene of scores of gang murders, was virtually sacked by 12 squads of Chicago police and 10 federal agents.

The two men seized in the raid had been marked for arrest by government agents and by Chicago detectives. They included Oliver J. Ellis, alleged payoff man for a liquor and slot machine syndicate which controlled millions of dollars in gambling concessions in the steel town.

Deputy Commissioner of Police John Stege said the raiders had seized men who would aid in the solution of several of 62 murders which have occurred in Chicago Heights since it became the hub of the alcohol war.

The distributing depot of one of the districts largest alcohol rings was seized. Hundreds of slot machines, machine guns, rifles and truck loads of other gang equipment were seized.

The entire local police force was locked in the city jail during the raids.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system — and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at your TONGUE every morning!

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

CHAPTER LVII.

JERRY called Ann up during the evening at the theatre.

"I've just had word from the hospital," he said, "that Pagalos is recovering consciousness and the doctors are pretty sure he's going to be O. K. I thought you'd be glad to know it."

The heaviness lifted from her heart. Tragedy melted and disappeared—only the tension of her love-struggles remained.

"Jerry, that's wonderful! Where are you—am I going to see you tonight?"

In his voice was a trace of preoccupation. "I'm clearing up my desk at the office—I'm quitting the paper tonight. I'm going home after awhile to start packing."

"I'll come straight home from the theatre," she told him.

A piercing regret — a sadness crept over her. Jerry had sacrificed his job because he hadn't played fair with his paper in protecting her from publicity. Not everyone, she realized, had quite his sense of honor. There was a gallantry in his gesture that appealed to her and gave her a feeling that he had sacrificed a great deal in her behalf. Casually, he had given up his livelihood, just as a matter of course. It was possible he might be leaving the town and going to another city...

Regret, a sweet but unhappy kind of loneliness, ached through her. If he should go away—but no, that was hardly possible. His presence had become a part of her life; to know that he was sleeping under the same roof with her had been always a background of consolation, a reserve source of security. She hurried home as rapidly as possible.

His room, when she rapped at his door, was a turmoil. A trunk had been dragged out and was locked shut as though waiting for an express man. Bags were open and shirts and neckties scattered about were being forced ruthlessly into the grips.

"Oh, hello," he said pleasantly. "I thought I might as well get started on the packing. I'm having a man come in tomorrow to nail the books up in boxes and I wanted to get my clothes and things stowed away. Sit down, if you can find a place that's clear."

"You're actually leaving?" Ann's voice was freighted with suspense. "Jerry, you're not going off—right away?"

"Tomorrow afternoon. I'm off for New York and the big shot."

"I can't believe it."

"Why not? The time was ripe for me to move, anyway. I've been selling a string of stories on the side and I'm O. K. on the money end. Besides that, I've got a line on a couple of corking jobs."

"What?"

"I don't want you to go."

"Don't be silly," he reproached her as he folded a suit of clothes. "You ought to be glad that I'm getting the break. Don't you want to see me get ahead?"

"But I counted on you, Jerry. I don't want you to go away so—so suddenly. I feel like I'm being left in the lurch."

"You feel that way, do you?"

"I do, Jerry."

He sat down for a moment to smoke a cigarette. "I never would have guessed you were greatly concerned with anything I did," he told her quietly through a cloud of smoke. "You've been so much on your own that I thought you had practically forgotten about me, but maybe you're only being polite."

"No, I'm not, I'm in earnest, Jerry." I mean it—I don't want you to go."

There was an eagerness about

"Jerry, tell me the truth. Has Maizie come between—between us?"

her, a suppressed kind of fear that g[illegible] an almost startled look opposite him; her eyes [illegible]nt but there was not [illegible]r in her face.

"... dear," he said patiently, "you're the greatest girl on earth for kidding yourself. You think now, that you hate to see me go but the fact that I have been here all the time has not meant a thing in the world to you. We're never agreed. Everything I've wanted you to do, you have done exactly the opposite."

"But that's not true," she protested.

"Oh yes, it is. Recall—I fell in love with you and you repulsed me. Then, when I thought you were in danger, I wanted you to go back home and cut out the kind of life but again you couldn't agree with me. You knew I didn't want you to go around so much with Steve but you went your own way. When I took an interest in little Maizie you were very subdued but quite definitely antagonistic to what I saw in the girl."

Ann's breathing, almost imperceptibly, was a bit heavy. "Jerry, tell me the truth. Has Maizie come between—between us?"

Carefully, he dropped a tip of ash from his cigarette into a tray. "I wouldn't say that."

"Steve told me you were going to spend some money on her and send her to a boarding school. It was his idea that you were in love with each other and that you were going to marry her—sometime."

Jerry smiled.

"No, I did think of sending Maizie to a boarding school but we both decided it would be a waste of time. And I'm not going to marry her, exactly. We're going about it in a much simpler way. The same train is going to carry both to New York—if you know what I mean?"

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

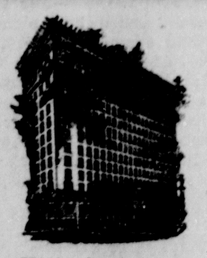

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

3 BELIEVERS IN WITCHCRAFT FACING TRIAL

AIR REMINISCENT OF THE DARK AGES HANGING OVER YORK, PA.

York, Pa., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Three men—believers in witchcraft—faced trial for their lives today for the slaying of a neighbor they believed had put an evil spell on them and theirs.

The men are John Blymyer, John Curry and Wilbert Hess who allegedly killed Nelson Rehmyer as part of a rite of casting out a curse they felt Rehmyer put upon them.

There hung over York today an air reminiscent of the dark ages, as the trial preliminaries were reached.

For with unfolding of the strange tale, there came to light the knowledge that in this fruitful valley of eastern Pennsylvania live many who still believe in witchcraft. Some of these folk still talk a corrupted German, and from that tongue they have Anglicized the word "hexed" to mean someone bewitched.

Chickens had died on the Hess farm, hens would not lay, the cows were sick, the family had trouble with relatives, and with a neighbor over a right-of-way.

Blymyer is alleged to have told the Hess family that Rehmeyer, a recluse who studied black arts, and who was distinguished by his great stature and his massive black beard, had cast a spell over the family and farm.

"If we can get a lock of hair from the back of Rehmeyer's head," he is alleged to have said, "the curse will be gone."

It was when Blymeyer, Curry and young Hess attempted to get the lock of hair that Rehmeyer was killed. As a result, York, a historic city, is to be the scene of the first witch trial in America since the days of Cotton Mather.

Although all three have made statements outlining how the attack on Rehmeyer was planned days in advance and have described a brutal beating they administered to him some predicted all will escape the death penalty.

York county, Pennsylvania, has a preponderant sentiment against capital punishment and it has been many years since a court in York ordered a convicted man executed.

WHITTIER PARENT TEACHERS

Speakers Tuesday Evening to be Mrs. W. C. Cobb and City Attorney D. H. Fullerton

The Whittier Parent Teachers association will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, at 7:45 o'clock. After a short business session the members will be given talks by Mrs. W. C. Cobb on the Kellogg Peace Treaty and D. H. Fullerton, city attorney, on "Delinquency in Children."

Musical numbers will consist of a group of piano selections by Miss Lorraine Morrison and a group of songs by A. T. Fishman. Mr. Fishman will be accompanied by Mrs. Louis Knudsen. Refreshments will be served.

NORTHWESTERN R. R. GIVEN AUTHORITY TO ISSUE BONDS

Washington, Jan. 7. — (UP)—Authority to issue $3,577,000 of general mortgage gold bonds was granted the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company today by the interstate commerce commission. The bonds will be used to retire outstanding securities as they become due.

JAIL LAKE

The death angel visited this community Tuesday evening, January 1, and called Mrs. Mary Sweet, death being due to complication of measles. Mrs. Sweet was 45 years old at time of death and leaves to mourn her loss a husband and four sons, Fred, George, Harold and Merton besides a host of friends. Interment was in Piney Ridge cemetery at Pine River Friday at 1 o'clock. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, daughter Ethel and granddaughter little Bertha Peterson called Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martha Glovers.

Mr. and Mrs. White had the misfortune to lose their home and all its contents by fire. Their neighbors kindly assisted them to build a new house and now they reported they are quite as comfortable as before.

Mrs. Ralph Duncan, Mrs. Roy Hardy and Miss Martha Datzman have assisted at the S. E. Sweet home while they have had the measles.

Mrs. Martha Glover, son Leon and grandsons, Donald and Eugene were business visitors in Pine River Saturday.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF MICHIGAN CRIME LAW IS UPHELD

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 7.—The constitutionality of the Michigan criminal code was upheld today when the supreme court affirmed the lower court sentence of Fred Palm, "pint of gin" lifer. Palm was sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act of the criminal code when he pleaded guilty to possession of a pint of gin. Information showing Palm had been convicted of six felonies, making life sentence mandatory under the code.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS FINDS GANGSTERS NOW IN JAIL

POLICE DEPARTMENT UNDER FIRE, LOCAL GOVERNMENT DISPOSSESSED

COMBINATION OF FEDERAL AND COUNTY AUTHORITIES NOW IN CONTROL

Chicago, Jan. 7. — (UP)—Chicago Heights, built by steel and demoralized by alcohol, awoke today to find its leading gangsters in jail, its police department under fire and its entire local government temporarily dispossessed by a combination of federal and county authorities.

It was the most spectacular raid in the history of Illinois. The town of 25,000 inhabitants, birthplace of gangland and scene of scores of gang murders, was virtually sacked by 12 squads of Chicago police and 10 federal agents.

The two men seized in the raid had been marked for arrest by government agents and by Chicago detectives. They included Oliver J. Ellis, alleged payoff man for a liquor and slot machine syndicate which controlled millions of dollars in gambling concessions in the steel town.

Deputy Commissioner of Police John Stege said the raiders had seized men who would aid in the solution of several of 62 murders which have occurred in Chicago Heights since it became the hub of the alcohol war.

The distributing depot of one of the districts largest alcohol rings was seized. Hundreds of slot machines, machine guns, rifles and truck loads of other gang equipment were seized.

Peaks of Desire

CHAPTER LVII.

JERRY called Ann up during the evening at the theatre.

"I've just had word from the hospital," he said, "that Pagalos is recovering consciousness and the doctors are pretty sure he's going to be O. K. I thought you'd be glad to know it."

The heaviness lifted from her heart. Tragedy melted and disappeared—only the tension of her love-struggles remained.

"Jerry, that's wonderful! Where are you—am I going to see you tonight?"

In his voice was a trace of preoccupation. "I'm clearing up my desk at the office—I'm quitting the paper tonight. I'm going home after awhile to start packing."

"I'll come straight home from the theatre," she told him.

A piercing regret—a sadness crept over her. Jerry had sacrificed his job because he hadn't played fair with his paper in protecting her from publicity. Not everyone, she realized, had quite his sense of honor. There was a gallantry in his gesture that appealed to her and gave her a feeling that he had sacrificed a great deal in her behalf. Casually, he had given up his livelihood, just as a matter of course. It was possible he might be leaving the town and going to another city...

Regret, a sweet but unhappy kind of loneliness, ached through her. If he should go away—but no, that was hardly possible. His presence had become a part of her life; to know that he was sleeping under the same roof with her had been always a background of consolation, a reserve source of security. She hurried home as rapidly as possible.

His room, when she rapped at his door, was a turmoil. A trunk had been dragged out and was locked shut as though waiting for an express man. Bags were open and shirts and neckties scattered about were being forced ruthlessly into the grips.

"Oh, hello," he said pleasantly. "I thought I might as well get started on the packing. I'm having a man come in tomorrow to nail the books up in boxes and I wanted to get my clothes and things stowed away. Sit down, if you can find a place that's clear."

"You're actually leaving?" Ann's voice was freighted with suspense. "Jerry, you're not going off—right away?"

"Tomorrow afternoon. I'm off for New York and the big shot."

"I can't believe it."

"Why not? The time was ripe for me to move, anyway. I've been selling a string of stories on the side and I'm O. K. on the money end. Besides that, I've got a line on a couple of corking jobs."

"What?"

"I don't want you to go."

"Don't be silly," he reproached her as he folded a suit of clothes. "You ought to be glad that I'm getting the break. Don't you want to see me get ahead?"

"But I counted on you, Jerry. I don't want you to go away so—so suddenly. I feel like I'm being left in the lurch."

"You feel that way, do you?"

"I do, Jerry."

He sat down for a moment to smoke a cigarette. "I never would have guessed you were greatly concerned with anything I did," he told her quietly through a cloud of smoke. "You've been so much on your own that I thought you had practically forgotten about me, but maybe you're only being polite."

"No, I'm not, I'm in earnest, Jerry." I mean it—I don't want you to go."

There was an eagerness about her, a suppressed kind of fear that gr[illegible] an almost startled look. opposite him; her eyes [illegible]nt but there was not [illegible]r in her face.

[illegible] dear," he said patiently, "you're the greatest girl on earth for kidding yourself. You think, now, that you hate to see me go but the fact that I have been here all the time has not meant a thing in the world to you. We're never agreed. Everything I've wanted you to do, you have done exactly the opposite."

"But that's not true," she protested. "Oh yes, it is. Recall—I fell in love with you and you repulsed me. Then, when I thought you were in danger, I wanted you to go back home and cut out this kind of life but again you couldn agree with me. You knew I didn want you to go around so much with Steve but you went your own way. When I took an interest little Maizie you were very subt but quite definitely antagonist to what I saw in the girl."

Ann's breathing, almost imperceptibly, was a bit heavy. "Jerry tell me the truth. Has Maizie come between—between us?"

Carefully, he dropped a tip of ash from his cigarette into a tray. "I wouldn't say that."

"Steve told me you were going to spend some money on her an

Jerry smiled.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system — and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

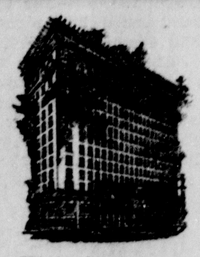

Look at your TONGUE every morning!

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

EDUCATION FOR ALL

THAT the enrollment in public schools and private institutions of learning is immeasurably influenced by the general prosperity of the country is apparent from the report of the Federal Bureau of Education for 1926, the latest issue, says the Christian Science Monitor. The unprecedented prosperity of the country finds expression in greatly increased school attendance, especially in the high schools and colleges. Enrollment in public high schools has doubled since 1920; and in cities, while attendance is not compulsory, it includes something like 70 per cent of all children of high school age. The rural schools show a falling off from this average, but in the whole country more than half the children eligible for this grade of education are in attendance upon high schools. The report shows that in 1900 the chance that a pupil of high school age was actually enrolled was but one in seven.

The figures of attendance presented in the report show the tremendous magnitude of the education system of the country. Nearly 21,000,000 children were enrolled in the public elementary schools, with an additional 2,143,000 in the private schools, or, in the aggregate, one-fifth of the entire population. More than 3,750,000 were in attendance upon public secondary schools, with nearly 350,000 additional in private schools of that grade.

Perhaps the significance of these figures is best seen when it is realized that one in every four persons of the entire population in 1926 was seeking some kind of education. It sems probable that even this number was larger during the following year, the report of which has not yet been issued.

Perhaps most amazing of all is the showing of more than three-quarters of a million in attendance at colleges and universities, an increase during the preceding five years of 25 per cent. This number does not include the nearly 300,000 teachers enrolled in the normal schools and colleges. While there is a gain in college enrollment of 2 per cent for 1928 over the previous year, the smallness of this increase is quite in contrast to the average gain in recent years. This condition is due in part, no doubt, to the increase of junior colleges and deliberate limitation by colleges unable to accommodate larger numbers. The enrollment of the great universities is amazing. Columbia, with its total of 32,036, and California, with 28,281, lead the list. Four others show an enrollment of more than 10,000 each.

FARM RELIEF MEASURES

SOME sensible farm relief measures have been outlined by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap who addressed the National Grange. Here are some of the points enunciated:

"Accept such legislation as Congress and the President are willing to give and amend it as opportunity offers.

"Cease opening new lands for agricultural purposes, either by putting water on or taking it off or in any other way.

"Let marginal lands upon which people are trying to eke out an existence revert to forest or pasture or absolute idleness.

"Relieve forest and cut-over lands from taxation until the owner begins to harvest his timber.

"Increase internal water transportation facilities.

"Through Federal appropriations encourage agricultural research.

"Encourage the establishment of farms which will be of the right size to operate most successfully and still maintain the farm community spirit.

"Find new uses for agricultural products, and for as many as possible by-products now wasted.

"Give more attention to fertilizer; to farm machinery; to prevention and cure of animal and plant diseases and tighten up the quarantine to prevent their introduction from other countries.

"Have the Federal Government see to it that the farmer gets a larger proportion of the consumer's dollar.

"Reserve the American market for the American farmer by a high tariff.

A MORNING WISH

W. R. HUNT in the January Woman's World gives utterance to this "Morning Wish."

The sun is just rising on the morning of another day, the first day of the new year. What can I wish that this day, this year, may bring to me? Nothing that shall make the world or others poorer, nothing at the expense of other men; but just those few things which in their coming do not stop with me, but touch me rather, as they pass and gather strength:

A few friends who understand me, and yet remain my friends.

A work to do which has real value without which the world would feel the poorer. A return for such small enough not to tax unduly anyone who pays.

A mind unafraid to travel, even though the trail be not blazed.

An understanding heart.

A sight of the eternal hills and unresting sea, and something beautiful the hand of man has made.

A sense of humor and the power to laugh.

A little leisure with nothing to do.

A few moments of quiet, silent meditation. The sense of the presence of God.

And the patience to wait for the coming of these things, with the wisdom to know them when they come.

A FIELD manager of a press association inaugurates an educational campaign to develop more local advertising among the merchants of the rural towns of Oklahoma and then uses radio talks to put his message across. This does not seem to show much consistency.

THE Board of Directors of the Minnesota Editorial Association have held their pre-convention meeting at the St. Paul Hotel in St. Paul. The program for the winter meeting on February 15 and 16 was outlined and other business transacted.

IF you feel you're not getting anything out of your community, try putting something into it.—Dassel Dispatch.

CHILDREN of all ages seem to inherit the craze of gathering calendars.

Lutheran Church Observes 400th Anniversary of Catechism

Lutheran groups all over the world will commemorate this year the 400th anniversary of the two Catechisms, published by Martin Luther in 1529. Jubilee editions of the so-called "Small" Catechism, which has been translated into more than one hundred languages and used as the "Layman's Bible" for four centuries, will be issued, one house planning on an edition of a million copies. Mass meetings in large centers and special services in congregations are planned. The Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and Other States is sponsoring an essay contest, in which the children of its parish and Sunday schools are to participate. That same body at its triennial convention next June, when delegates representing more than a million Lutherans will assemble in Chicago, is giving a prominent place on its program to the celebration of the Catechism quadricentennial. Several books on the history and importance of the Catechism have already appeared and more are expected.

The dominant thought of the Catechism, as well as of Luther's entire life-work, redemption through Christ, the crucified Son of God, is expressed in the symbolic drawings.

Story of Catechism

The book so uniquely vital has a fascinating history. We possess it in two forms. Martin Luther wrote the Large Catechism as a treatise, in which he expounded the fundamental truths of Christianity, which he also set forth in questions and answers in the Small Catechism. Both of these appeared early in 1529.

Martin Luther

They were born of the need of the times. Religious ignorance was widespread. A survey of conditions in the churches of Saxony, made a decade after the Reformation had gotten under way, revealed a deplorable lack of Christian knowledge, even among clergymen. The preface to the Small Catechism contains a graphic picture of the situation that prompted Luther to write these books.

Immediate Popularity

Like his 95 Theses, published twelve years previously, Luther's Catechism took Europe by storm. At one time every printer in Wittenberg was printing them. Outside of that city there were 132 different editions during the sixteenth century. An English translation was soon made by Archbishop Cranmer. During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries translations were published in the Icelandic, Polish, Greek, Hebrew, Latin, Arabic, Bohemian, Danish, Esthonian, Finnish, French, Slavonian, Livonian, Lettish, Lithuanian, Dutch, Norwegian, Swedish, Spanish, and Wendish languages. Ever since it has remained the chief text-book for the religious instruction of children in Lutheran churches of all lands. Thousands of American boys and girls are daily studying the booklet that first appeared in 1529.

What the Catechism Contains

The popularity and continued usefulness of the Small Catechism are readily understood. The great truths of the Bible are summed up and presented in a form so simple that every child may grasp them. These truths are eternal and meet the religious needs of every soul in every age. Luther injected into the Catechism no wisdom of his own. For him the Bible was God's Word, the only and sufficient authority in matters of religion. A religious text-book could do no more than present what God's Word teaches. President W. H. T. Dau of Valparaiso University has rightly observed: "The Catechism of Luther has taught Lutherans to respect no teaching except that drawn from Holy Writ."

Luther begins with the Ten Commandments, to each of which he adds a brief word of explanation. After this presentation of the divine Law with its demonstration of man's failure and consequent eternal doom, the Creed follows. Luther takes the ancient Apostolic Creed as the exposition of Christian faith, divides it into three articles, each one dealing with one person of the Holy Trinity, and again adds an explanation. These three explanations of the Creed are a classic definition of the faith of the Church in God the Father, who created all things, in God the Son, who by His suffering and death redeemed humanity, and in God the Holy Ghost, who through the Gospel brings men to faith in Christ. The Lord's Prayer is the third part; each petition is briefly, yet adequately explained. Sections on the two Sacraments, Baptism and the Lord's Supper, as well as on Confession and Absolution, comprise the balance of the book.

With remarkable pedagogical insight Luther spends no time on polemics. The unlearned and the young are to learn what God wants them to know. They require positive truth. The Catechism gives them that. "The versatility of the Reformer", says McGiffert, "in adapting himself with such success to the needs of the young and immature is no less than extraordinary. Such a little book as this it is that reveals most clearly the genius of the man."

The Catechism and America

The Catechism is of especial interest to Americans because it was the first book to be translated into the language of the American Indians. Prof. Theo. Graebner, editor of the Lutheran Witness, in his book entitled "The Story of the Catechism," tells how a Swedish Lutheran pastor, John Campanius, arrived in 1642 with a company of colonists from Sweden and settled on the banks of the Delaware. He soon began to work among the natives and as an aid in this labor of love translated Luther's Small Catechism into the language of the Delawares. The earliest English Catechism printed in America appeared at Philadelphia in 1749 and was probably issued by the publishing house of Benjamin Franklin, in whose office a German reprint appeared in the same year.

EDUCATION FOR ALL

THAT the enrollment in public schools and private institutions of learning is immeasurably influenced by the general prosperity of the country is apparent from the report of the Federal Bureau of Education for 1926, the latest issue, says the Christian Science Monitor. The unprecedented prosperity of the country finds expression in greatly increased school attendance, especially in the high schools and colleges. Enrollment in public high schools has doubled since 1920; and in cities, while attendance is not compulsory, it includes something like 70 per cent of all children of high school age. The rural schools show a falling off from this average, but in the whole country more than half the children eligible for this grade of education are in attendance upon high schools. The report shows that in 1900 the chance that a pupil of high school age was actually enrolled was but one in seven.

The figures of attendance presented in the report show the tremendous magnitude of the education system of the country. Nearly 21,000,000 children were enrolled in the public elementary schools, with an additional 2,143,000 in the private schools, or, in the aggregate, one-fifth of the entire population. More than 3,750,000 were in attendance upon public secondary schools, with nearly 350,000 additional in private schools of that grade.

Perhaps the significance of these figures is best seen when it is realized that one in every four persons of the entire population in 1926 was seeking some kind of education. It sems probable that even this number was larger during the following year, the report of which has not yet been issued.

Perhaps most amazing of all is the showing of more than three-quarters of a million in attendance at colleges and universities, an increase during the preceding five years of 25 per cent. This number does not include the nearly 300,000 teachers enrolled in the normal schools and colleges. While there is a gain in college enrollment of 2 per cent for 1928 over the previous year, the smallness of this increase is quite in contrast to the average gain in recent years. This condition is due in part, no doubt, to the increase of junior colleges and deliberate limitation by colleges unable to accommodate larger numbers. The enrollment of the great universities is amazing. Columbia, with its total of 32,036, and California, with 28,281, lead the list. Four others show an enrollment of more than 10,000 each.

FARM RELIEF MEASURES

SOME sensible farm relief measures have been outlined by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap who addressed the National Grange. Here are some of the points enunciated:

"Accept such legislation as Congress and the President are willing to give and amend it as opportunity offers.

"Cease opening new lands for agricultural purposes, either by putting water on or taking it off or in any other way.

"Let marginal lands upon which people are trying to eke out an existence revert to forest or pasture or absolute idleness.

"Relieve forest and cut-over lands from taxation until the owner begins to harvest his timber.

"Increase internal water transportation facilities.

"Through Federal appropriations encourage agricultural research.

"Encourage the establishment of farms which will be of the right size to operate most successfully and still maintain the farm community spirit.

"Find new uses for agricultural products, and for as many as possible by-products now wasted.

"Give more attention to fertilizer; to farm machinery; to prevention and cure of animal and plant diseases and tighten up the quarantine to prevent their introduction from other countries.

"Have the Federal Government see to it that the farmer gets a larger proportion of the consumer's dollar.

"Reserve the American market for the American farmer by a high tariff.

A MORNING WISH

W. R. HUNT in the January Woman's World gives utterance to this "Morning Wish."

The sun is just rising on the morning of another day, the first day of the new year. What can I wish that this day, this year, may bring to me? Nothing that shall make the world or others poorer, nothing at the expense of other men; but just those few things which in their coming do not stop with me, but touch me rather, as they pass and gather strength:

A few friends who understand me, and yet remain my friends.

A work to do which has real value without which the world would feel the poorer. A return for such small enough not to tax unduly anyone who pays.

A mind unafraid to travel, even though the trail be not blazed.

An understanding heart.

A sight of the eternal hills and unresting sea, and something beautiful the hand of man has made.

A sense of humor and the power to laugh.

A little leisure with nothing to do.

A few moments of quiet, silent meditation. The sense of the presence of God.

And the patience to wait for the coming of these things, with the wisdom to know them when they come.

A FIELD manager of a press association inaugurates an educational campaign to develop more local advertising among the merchants of the rural towns of Oklahoma and then uses radio talks to put his message across. This does not seem to show much consistency.

THE Board of Directors of the Minnesota Editorial Association have held their pre-convention meeting at the St. Paul Hotel in St. Paul. The program for the winter meeting on February 15 and 16 was outlined and other business transacted.

IF you feel you're not getting anything out of your community, try putting something into it.—Dassel Dispatch.

CHILDREN of all ages seem to inherit the craze of gathering calendars.

COURTNEY CASE GOES TO TRIAL

Up to Noon 5 Jurors Accepted, 5 Prospective Jurors Are Excused

MAY COMPLETE JURY BY 4 P. M.

Courtney Charged With Complicity in Robbery of First National Bank of Ironton

When court convened this afternoon, the Courtney trial was interrupted to permit of two arraignments in other cases.

H. A. Berg, arraigned on the charge of assault in the second degree upon Henry Elvig, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term of one to five years in the reformatory at St. Cloud.

Bob Moyer, charged with forgery in the third degree, was arraigned and pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred.

Up to noon today five jurors had been accepted while attorneys for the state and defense had exercised rights of preemptory challenge by excusing five jurors upon examination in the case of the State vs. John J. Courtney charging robbery in the first degree in connection with the holdup of the First National bank of Ironton on November 9, 1927.

Three jurors were excused by the defense and two by the state. Attorneys were of the opinion that a jury would be secured by 4 o'clock this afternoon when the state will call its first witness.

The district court room was packed to the doors half an hour before Judge Bert Fesler, presiding trial judge called the court to order. The first juror was called to the stand at 9:20 a. m.

Joe Courtney appeared in the court room accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Charles W. Oberg and Sam Bloomstrom. He immediately took his seat besides his attorneys, M. F. Kinkead, of St. Paul and Lamonte P. Koop, Brainerd.

For the state Walter F. Wieland, assistant attorney general, conducted examination of the jurors for the state. Up to noon he had excused two of the jurors questioned. County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan sat with Mr. Wieland and will assist in the cross examination of the witnesses.

The court room was closely guarded today by a reinforced squad of deputy sheriffs who questioned unknown parties as they entered the court room. One man believed from St. Paul was searched for weapons. He left the court house after he was searched by a deputy sheriff.

Among those in the court room were: Almon H. Proctor, former cashier of the First National bank of Ironton who was returned from the Stillwater penitentiary as a material witness for the state in the prosecution of Courtney, and who is now serving sentence of one to ten years after pleading guilty to the charge of complicity of the bank holdup, returning $10,000 of the $35,767 stolen.

P. W. McGarry, Ironton poolroom proprietor, who was acquitted by a Crow Wing county jury of the charge of complicity in connection with the holdup and who will be called as a witness for the state.

B. E. Grottum, county attorney of Jackson county, who will conduct the state's case in the prosecution of bandits who robbed the Jackson County State bank of $5,000 three months ago. Courtney is at present under indictment by grand jury for alleged participation in the holdup.

Charles Brown, head of the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers association, who assisted in causing the arrest of Proctor and worked on the case from the day of the holdup, is expected in Brainerd this afternoon from St. Paul and may be used as a witness.

Jurors were being drawn from the following panel: Martin Anderson, Ned Bowman, Sigrud Brenno, S. F. Framling, C. W. Coleman, Mrs. Herman Holm, Mrs. Fred Backen, A. E. Fredstrom, Mrs. L. J. Erickson, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Theodore Evans, I. Bjornaas, Hugo Luck, Ernest Kleinschmidt, Mrs. Joe Britton, Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, D. T. Lawrence, Mrs. Zimmerman, Glen Hite, Mel Stropp, Sam Hawkins, Bert Sabin, T. E. Nitterauer, Mrs. Margaret Halvorson, Joe Dotzler, Mrs. Fred McGivern, J. S. Schroyer, Mrs. Vernon White, Mrs. M. B. Ellingson, Ed. Johnson, Mrs. S. H. Nelson, Mrs. C. W. Mannis, Mrs. A. L. Koop, Mrs. Ralph Long.

Ernest Kleinschmidt, farmer, was the first juror called. He stated that he had heard of the case through the newspapers but that he had not formed an opinion of his own. He was accepted.

Mr. Framling, a retired Northern Pacific railway employee here stated that a man from the N. P. shops had talked to him concerning the case but that he had not formed any opinion whether Courtney was guilty or innocent. He was excused by the defense.

Ned Bowman, of Ideal, a farmer, was accepted. Glen Hite, of Emily, a farmer, the next juror called was also accepted. Mrs. A. L. Koop and Mrs. W. M. Murphy, both of Brainerd were excused, both by the state.

Mrs. Margaret Halvorson, widow, Brainerd was accepted. She was questioned by the defense as to whether she was prejudiced against people in liquor dealings and whether or not she would be influenced if testimony was brought out that Courtney was engaged at one time in bootlegging. Mrs. Halvorson stated that she was prejudiced against liquor but that it would not influence her in deciding the issue at stake in this trial.

Mrs. M. B. Ellingson, of Ironton, was excused from acting on the jury by the defense. On questioning by Attorney Kinkead she stated that she was acquainted with Mr. Proctor, and employees of the bank and that she knew Mr. McGarry when she saw him. She said she had heard the robbery discussed but had not formed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Courtney.

Mrs. Ralph Long of Brainerd was excused from sitting on the jury by the defense.

I. Bjornaas, of Ironton was the fifth juror accepted. He stated that he had known Proctor since he first came to Ironton and stated that he had discussed particulars of the robbery with employees of the bank a few days after the holdup.

"If you were on trial would you want a juror like yourself to decide the verdict?" questioned Attorney Kinkead.

"I'm sure I would get a fair deal," Mr. Bjornaas replied.

Shortly after court convened this afternoon, two jurors were accepted, Mrs. Joseph Britton and Mrs. Fred Backen of Brainerd. This now makes four men and three women to date on the jury. It may take the balance of the day to select the remaining five.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. L. R. Hall Takes as His Topic, "The Burden of Souls"

AN INSPIRING ADDRESS

Lively Song Services and Good Chorus Singing Are Features of Services

In spite of the extremely cold weather the revival campaign began last evening at the First Baptist church with Rev. L. R. Hall as the evangelist. Taking as his subject "The Burden of Souls," he gave an inspiring discourse to all who came. Lively song services and good chorus singing led by Mr. Hall was promised as one of the interesting features of the meetings.

In part Mr. Hall said, "It was Paul's burden that gave him courage, and it gave him what every Christian should have namely, 'head power, heart power, and heel power.' Paul's burden controlled him to common sense, which is head power; and even though a highly educated man, he had a great heart for the lost, which is heart power; and though it meant the jeapordizing of his life he was willing to go where Christ might lead him, which was heel power. One of the chief prerequisites for a revival is that formality shall be broken up and that Christians will feel that intense burden for lost souls which characterized the Apostles in their work. We will have many brought to Christ in Brainerd if the Christian people will pray."

The subject for the sermon for this evening is "A Praying Church." Children's meetings are held every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4:15 P. M. Personal worker's meetings will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings at 7 P. M. to which every one is invited. On Tuesday evening "The Ministry of the Holy Spirit" will be the subject discussed. The people of Brainerd are urged to attend these meetings.

MRS. THOS. McMASTERS DIES

Passed Away in Los Angeles, From Flu—Was Former Resident of Brainerd

Word was received in the city today by private letter that Mrs. Thomas McMasters, formerly of Brainerd, died December 19 in Los Angeles, Calif., of bronchial pneumonia, following the flu. She was 80 years of age.

Mrs. McMasters is survived by one son, Rev. Vernon McMasters, rector of St. Andrews Episcopal church of Birmingham, Ala. Her husband preceded her in death a few years ago.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN N. E. ALLEY

Body of John Komiski, Aged About 38 Years, Found Last Evening by Youth

STROKE CAUSES DEATH

Man Was Walking From Downtown to His Home on 5th Avenue When Stricken

John Komiski, aged about 38 years odl, was found dead in the alley of Fourth Avenue N. E. Brainerd last evening about 8 o'clock.

He was found by Gordon Callahan, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B Callahan, 114 4th Avenue N. E. who immediately notified his parents Police, Coroner D. E. Whitney and a Brainerd physician were immediately summoned. Death was attributed to a stroke.

Mr. Komiski had died immediately upon taking the stroke soon after he had left Fourth Avenue to walk into the alley on his way to his rooming house on Fifth Avenue N. E. One of his hands rested on his heart.

According to the story given The Dispatch by neighbors, Mr. Komiski was returning from his farm a few miles west of the city when he took the stroke. He had secured a ride in from the country and had walked to Northeast Brainerd from downtown.

The deceased is believed to have been without relatives in Brainerd. He was employed in the Northern Pacific shops here.

VOTERS' SERVICE AGAIN ON AIR

Minnesota League of Women Voters Makes Announcement Today

BROADCAST TUESDAY, JAN. 8

Designed to Carry on in a Non-Campaign Year Interest of Voters

The Voters' Information Service is to go on the air again, according to members of the Brainerd League of Women Voters.

The 1929 series will be ushered in on Tuesday night, January 8, at 6 o'clock under the joint sponsorship of the National Broadcasting Company and the National League of Women Voters, and is designed to carry on in a non-campaign year the interest voters have indicated in issues in congress and policies of the present and incoming administrations.

Three speakers will participate in the program, the theme of which will be "Radio and the Voter—What the Campaign Proved." Two of the speakers, Representative Walter E. Newton of Minnesota, and Mrs. Mary Norton, only democratic congresswoman, will discuss "What I Think Radio Did for the Voter During the Campaign," while an old favorite with Voters' Service audiences, Charles G. Ross, Washington newspaper correspondent, will present his usual review of "What Congress is Doing." The half-hour program, which will be broadcast from station WRC, Washington, will be carried by 18 stations.

Congressman Newton is particularly qualified to speak on the relationship of the radio and voter. In the last campaign, he was chairman of the speakers' division for the republican national committee, and from his headquarters in Chicago directed the extensive speaking schedule for the republican party. He has served ten years in the house of representatives. He introduced the pending Newton bill, which provides for a child welfare extension service in the U. S. Children's Bureau.

Mrs. Norton holds the distinction of being the first democratic woman elected to congress. She was re-elected for her third term in the recent November election.

In the campaign series of the "Voters' Service" Mr. Ross conducted the fortnightly review of "What Congress is Doing." He is chief of the Washington Bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

COMING YEAR TO BE PROSPEROUS

Earl C. Sams, President of J. C. Penney Company, in Interview

Says Nationwide Feeling of Optimism is Evident on All Sides

A nationwide feeling of optimism, supported by industrial conditions which are notably good, by agricultural conditions which are appreciably better than for several years, and by a world trade condition which is increasingly improved, presages a year of widespread prosperity, says Earl C. Sams, president of the J. C. Penney company.

A cross section of the country, taken through 1078 store managers shows an even distribution of prosperous conditions reflected in good buying on the part of the general public with satisfactory increases coming to retail merchants who are conducting their business on a basis which is economically sound.

Present indications are that there will be helpful considerations by the federal government which will add to agricultural security and to industrial stability. These two great phases of our national activity are being treated in a national way which cannot help but result in an improved distribution of success and profit.

In the agricultural sections the farmers and stockmen are utilizing the results of the good work which has been done in the past few years by leading agriculturals and stockbreeders. The country is raising better food products and better live stock.

Decentralization of productive effort and centralization of marketing are working together to give more farmers a better return for their efforts.

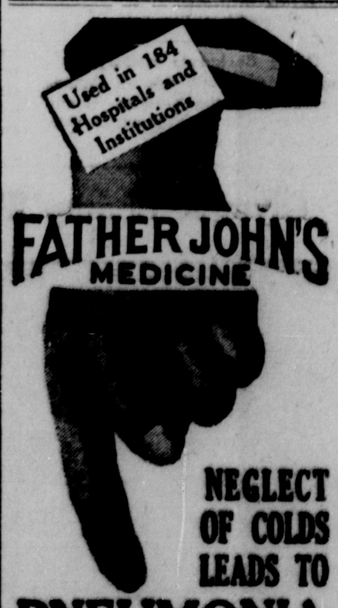

The same decentralization of individual effort and centralization of buying and merchandising control will be felt in the general commercial life of the country during the next few years.

The individual consumer will get the benefit of the new scientific moves in business, which are all based upon eliminating as many intermediate costs between manufacturer and consumer as may be satisfactorily done away with.

The country at large is more closely knit than ever before. People in San Francisco and Los Angeles are no longer strangers to people in New York and Chicago.

This is a good thing for business in general. It creates a national knowledge of the value of merchandise which is highly valuable to the consumer.

SAYS BIRD IS NO GREY EAGLE

Mrs. J. A. Thabes Claims Bird on Display is a Golden Eagle

PROTECTED BY STATE

Two Deputy Game Commissioners Confirm Mrs. Thabes' Statement

Mrs. John A. Thabes, who is considered to be one of the foremost authorities in the state on birds, has examined the eagle in the windows at Judd Wright & Son hardware store, and takes exception to the statement made that it was a grey eagle. Mrs. Thabes says there is no distinct species of eagle known as grey eagle ,that young birds are often called grey eagles. The bird shown in the window is a young golden eagle, which is protected by the laws of the state of Minnesota, and will be released in a few days.

A. P. Cardle and C. C. Watters of the Fish & Game Commission have both examined the bird, and they agree with Mrs. Thabes that it is a golden eagle, and is the same as the one appearing on the American dollar.

It is almost impossible to distinguish between a bald eagle and golden eagle when they are immature. One of the few points of distinction is that the feathers which cover the legs of both species come to the very toes on the golden eagle, while on the bald eagle a part of the leg is bare.

It is some time since anything of this nature has aroused as much curiosity as this eagle, for while they are fairly common in this state, few people have ever seen one in the woods.

The injury sustained by the bird's foot when caught is nearly healed, and will leave no bad effects. It is being closely watched as to its condition and will not be injured in any way. Mr. Watters stated it would be best to release the bird in the country, for after being confined it would probably be dazed and might injure itself if released in the city.

WABEDO

The neighbors and friends extend their sympathy to Dick Sweet and family in the loss of their wife and mother, who was taken from them New Year's day, Mrs. Sweet having only been sick a short time with measles and pneumonia. She was laid to rest in Pine River cemetery on Friday.

N. H. and Mrs. Hough took in the Masonic and Eastern Star banquet at Pine River Thursday night.

Mrs. Geo. Felton left Thursday night for her home in Pine River after taking care of her son Ralph, a week who has the pneumonia, but is much improved at this writing.

A large crowd attended Mrs. Sweet's funeral in Pine River Friday afternoon to pay their last respects to a very good friend and circle member.

Roy Whitted returned to Pine River Sunday afternoon to resume his school studies Monday morning. Roy with a few others of the vicinity will graduate in the spring.

COURTNEY CASE GOES TO TRIAL

Up to Noon 5 Jurors Accepted, 5 Prospective Jurors Are Excused

MAY COMPLETE JURY BY 4 P. M.

Courtney Charged With Complicity in Robbery of First National Bank of Ironton

When court convened this afternoon, the Courtney trial was interrupted to permit of two arraignments in other cases.

H. A. Berg, arraigned on the charge of assault in the second degree upon Henry Elvig, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term of one to five years in the reformatory at St. Cloud.

Bob Moyer, charged with forgery in the third degree, was arraigned and pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred.

Up to noon today five jurors had been accepted while attorneys for the state and defense had exercised rights of preemptory challenge by excusing five jurors upon examination in the case of the State vs. John J. Courtney charging robbery in the first degree in connection with the holdup of the First National bank of Ironton on November 9, 1927.

Three jurors were excused by the defense and two by the state. Attorneys were of the opinion that a jury would be secured by 4 o'clock this afternoon when the state will call its first witness.

The district court room was packed to the doors half an hour before Judge Bert Fesler, presiding trial judge called the court to order. The first juror was called to the stand at 9:20 a. m.

Joe Courtney appeared in the court room accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Charles W. Oberg and Sam Bloomstrom. He immediately took his seat besides his attorneys, M. F. Kinkead, of St. Paul and Lamonte P. Koop, Brainerd.

For the state Walter F. Wieland, assistant attorney general, conducted examination of the jurors for the state. Up to noon he had excused two of the jurors questioned. County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan sat with Mr. Wieland and will assist in the cross examination of the witnesses.

The court room was closely guarded today by a reinforced squad of deputy sheriffs who questioned unknown parties as they entered the court room. One man believed from St. Paul was searched for weapons. He left the court house after he was searched by a deputy sheriff.

Among those in the court room were: Almon H. Proctor, former cashier of the First National bank of Ironton who was returned from the Stillwater penitentiary as a material witness for the state in the prosecution of Courtney, and who is now serving sentence of one to ten years after pleading guilty to the charge of complicity of the bank holdup, returning $10,000 of the $35,767 stolen.

P. W. McGarry, Ironton poolroom proprietor, who was acquitted by a Crow Wing county jury of the charge of complicity in connection with the holdup and who will be called as a witness for the state.

B. E. Grottum, county attorney of Jackson county, who will conduct the state's case in the prosecution of bandits who robbed the Jackson County State bank of $5,000 three months ago. Courtney is at present under indictment by grand jury for alleged participation in the holdup.

Charles Brown, head of the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers association, who assisted in causing the arrest of Proctor and worked on the case from the day of the holdup, is expected in Brainerd this afternoon from St. Paul and may be used as a witness.

Jurors were being drawn from the following panel: Martin Anderson, Ned Bowman, Sigrud Brenno, S. F. Framling, C. W. Coleman, Mrs. Herman Holm, Mrs. Fred Backen, A. E. Fredstrom, Mrs. L. J. Erickson, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Theodore Evans, L. Bjornaas, Hugo Luek, Ernest Kleinschmidt, Mrs. Joe Britton, Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, D. T. Lawrence, Mrs. Zimmerman, Glen Hite, Mel Stropp, Sam Hawkins, Bert Sabin, T. E. Nitterauer, Mrs. Margaret Halvorson, Joe Dotzler, Mrs. Fred McGivern, J. S. Schroyer, Mrs. Vernon White, Mrs. M. B. Ellingson, Ed. Johnson, Mrs. S. H. Nelson, Mrs. C. W. Mannis, Mrs. A. L. Koop, Mrs. Ralph Long.

Ernest Kleinschmidt, farmer, was the first juror called. He stated that he had heard of the case through the newspapers but that he had not formed an opinion of his own. He was accepted.

Mr. Framling, a retired Northern Pacific railway employee here stated that a man from the N. P. shops had talked to him concerning the case but that he had not formed any opinion whether Courtney was guilty or innocent. He was excused by the defense.

Ned Bowman, of Ideal, a farmer, was accepted. Glen Hite, of Emily, a farmer, the next juror called was also accepted. Mrs. A. L. Koop and Mrs. W. M. Murphy, both of Brainerd were excused, both by the state.

Mrs. Margaret Halvorson, widow, Brainerd was accepted. She was questioned by the defense as to whether she was prejudiced against people in liquor dealings and whether or not she would be influenced if testimony was brought out that Courtney was engaged at one time in bootlegging. Mrs. Halvorson stated that she was prejudiced against liquor but that it would not influence her in deciding the issue at stake in this trial.

Mrs. M. B. Ellingson, of Ironton, was excused from acting on the jury by the defense. On questioning by Attorney Kinkead she stated that she was acquainted with Mr. Proctor, and employees of the bank and that she knew Mr. McGarry when she saw him. She said she had heard the robbery discussed but had not formed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of Courtney.

Mrs. Ralph Long of Brainerd was excused from sitting on the jury by the defense.

I. Bjornaas, of Ironton was the fifth juror accepted. He stated that he had known Proctor since he first came to Ironton and stated that he had discussed particulars of the robbery with employees of the bank a few days after the holdup.

"If you were on trial would you want a juror like yourself to decide the verdict?" questioned Attorney Kinkead.

"I'm sure I would get a fair deal," Mr. Bjornaas replied.

Shortly after court convened this afternoon, two jurors were accepted, Mrs. Joseph Britton and Mrs. Fred Backen of Brainerd. This now makes four men and three women to date on the jury. It may take the balance of the day to select the remaining five.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. L. R. Hall Takes as His Topic, "The Burden of Souls"

AN INSPIRING ADDRESS

In spite of the extremely cold weather the revival campaign began last evening at the First Baptist church with Rev. L. R. Hall as the evangelist. Taking as his subject "The Burden of Souls," he gave an inspiring discourse to all who came. Lively song services and good chorus singing led by Mr. Hall was promised as one of the interesting features of the meetings.

In part Mr. Hall said, "It was Paul's burden that gave him courage, and it gave him what every Christian should have namely, 'head power, heart power, and heel power.' Paul's burden controlled him to common sense, which is head power; and even though a highly educated man, he had a great heart for the lost, which is heart power; and though it meant the jeapordizing of his life he was willing to go where Christ might lead him, which was heel power. One of the chief prerequisites for a revival is that formality shall be broken up and that Christians will feel that intense burden for lost souls which characterized the Apostles in their work. We will have many brought to Christ in Brainerd if the Christian people will pray."

The subject for the sermon for this evening is "A Praying Church." Children's meetings are held every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4:15 P. M. Personal worker's meetings will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings at 7 P. M. to which every one is invited. On Tuesday evening "The Ministry of the Holy Spirit" will be the subject discussed. The people of Brainerd are urged to attend these meetings.

MRS. THOS. McMASTERS DIES

Word was received in the city today by private letter that Mrs. Thomas McMasters, formerly of Brainerd, died December 19 in Los Angeles, Calif., of bronchial pneumonia, following the flu. She was 80 years of age.

Mrs. McMasters is survived by one son, Rev. Vernon McMasters, rector of St. Andrews Episcopal church of Birmingham, Ala. Her husband preceded her in death a few years ago.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN N. E. ALLEY

Body of John Komiski, Aged About 38 Years, Found Last Evening by Youth

STROKE CAUSES DEATH

Man Was Walking From Downtown to His Home on 5th Avenue When Stricken

John Komiski, aged about 38 years odl, was found dead in the alley of Fourth Avenue N. E. Brainerd last evening about 8 o'clock.

He was found by Gordon Callahan, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B Callahan, 114 4th Avenue N. E. who immediately notified his parents Police, Coroner D. E. Whitney and a Brainerd physician were immediately summoned. Death was attributed to a stroke.

Mr. Komiski had died immediately upon taking the stroke soon after he had left Fourth Avenue to walk into the alley on his way to his rooming house on Fifth Avenue N. E. One of his hands rested on his heart.

According to the story given The Dispatch by neighbors, Mr. Komiski was returning from his farm a few miles west of the city when he took the stroke. He had secured a ride in from the country and had walked to Northeast Brainerd from downtown.

The deceased is believed to have been without relatives in Brainerd. He was employed in the Northern Pacific shops here.

VOTERS' SERVICE AGAIN ON AIR

Minnesota League of Women Voters Makes Announcement Today

BROADCAST TUESDAY, JAN. 8

Designed to Carry on in a Non-Campaign Year Interest of Voters

The Voters' Information Service is to go on the air again, according to members of the Brainerd League of Women Voters.

The 1929 series will be ushered in on Tuesday night, January 8, at 6 o'clock under the joint sponsorship of the National Broadcasting Company and the National League of Women Voters, and is designed to carry on in a non-campaign year the interest voters have indicated in issues in congress and policies of the present and incoming administrations.

Three speakers will participate in the program, the theme of which will be "Radio and the Voter—What the Campaign Proved." Two of the speakers, Representative Walter E. Newton of Minnesota, and Mrs. Mary Norton, only democratic congresswoman, will discuss "What I Think Radio Did for the Voter During the Campaign," while an old favorite with Voters' Service audiences, Charles G. Ross, Washington newspaper correspondent, will present his usual review of "What Congress is Doing." The half-hour program, which will be broadcast from station WRC, Washington, will be carried by 18 stations.

Congressman Newton is particularly qualified to speak on the relationship of the radio and voter. In the last campaign, he was chairman of the speakers' division for the republican national committee, and from his headquarters in Chicago directed the extensive speaking schedule for the republican party. He has served ten years in the house of representatives. He introduced the pending Newton bill, which provides for a child welfare extension service in the U. S. Children's Bureau.

Mrs. Norton holds the distinction of being the first democratic woman elected to congress. She was re-elected for her third term in the recent November election.

In the campaign series of the "Voters' Service" Mr. Ross conducted the fortnightly review of "What Congress is Doing." He is chief of the Washington Bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

SPORT WORLD LOSES GEO. "TEX" RICKARD

MOST COLORFUL, PREDOMINANT FIGURE IN GAME

BODY BEING BROUGHT BACK TO SCENE OF HIS GREATEST TRIUMPHS

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 7. — The sport world has lost one of its most colorful and predominant figures in George L. (Tex) Rickard, who died early Sunday at Miami Beach, Florida, of infection following an operation for appendicitis.

Today, the body of the noted promoter, whose early life was one of unfettered romance and whose later years brought him unparalleled success as a master showman, was coming back to the scene of his greatest triumphs aboard a fast New York-bound express.

A beloved and incurable romanticist, who retained to the high moments when his vision of million-dollar "gates" came true the same enthusiasm which had stood him in good stead in the days of cow-punching, gold-mining, and gambling in the far west, Rickard met death peacefully in his sleep.

His end came as a strangely quiet contrast to a life crowded with excitement.

It was the promoter's stubborn fight against an imperative operation for an infected appendix which cost him his life.

"Mr. Rickard's death resulted from an overwhelming infection following acute gangrenous appendicitis," Dr. E. H. Adkins, who operated upon Tex on New Year's day, stated in a brief official bulletin.

When the promoter at the age of 59 passed away at 8:37 A. M. Sunday, after being unconscious for two hours, his young wife and a close friend, Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion, stood bowed in grief at his death bed. When the end came it was Dempsey who sought after the abashed fashion of men of action in such crises, to console Mrs. Rickard, and who took immediate charge of funeral arrangements and business affairs.

After brief services in a Catholic chapel at Miami Beach, the body was placed aboard the "Havana Special" shortly before midnight, accompanied by Mrs. Rickard, Dempsey and Walter Fields, an old friend and trusted employe of the late promoter.

The train is due in New York City at 10:19 A. M. tomorrow, and the remains will lie in state at Campbell's funeral parlors on Broadway Tuesday afternoon and night. Burial will be at Woodlawn cemetery Wednesday.

The greatest tribute paid to Rickard today was the difficulty men had in even suggesting his possible successor.

Madion Square Garden, monument to his genius as a promoter, was wrapped in gloom, for "The Boss," whose office door stood ever open, was loved truly by those in that dominant sports organization.

An early life given over to the spontaneity of quick gun play, prospecting in the earth for gold and playing for it over the green clothed gambling tables gave Rickard a zest for adventure which culminated in exploits of daring showmanship.

It was something of the gambling spirit which cost Tex another chance of life, for he repeatedly put off the operation for appendicitis which surgeons insisted was necessary.

On New Year's day, Tex yielded to an overpowering attack and an operation followed at the Allison hospital at Miami Beach. There he seemed to rally, and even after a relapse late Friday night he was able to smile and take the hand of his friend, Dempsey, and say firmly: "Jack, I've got this fight won."

But he hadn't.

He died in his sleep Sunday, slipping off into unconsciousness in the early hours, while his wife and the former heavyweight champion and others believed him on the point of recovery.

"I have lost the best pal a man ever had," said Dempsey, his broad shoulders drooping, after returning from escorting Mrs. Rickard to her home.

In the search for a successor to Tex's place as leader in promoting of boxing, Dempsey will not be overlooked. But opinion among those whose expressions of regret and sympathy poured in today was decidedly to the effect that there could be "only one Tex Rickard."

There were two turning points in the life of this extraordinary man. The first came when he successfully promoted the Gans-Nelson lightweight championship fight at Goldfield, Nevada, more than 22 years ago.

The second turning point in Rickard's career was announced by Tex one afternoon five years ago. A group of Wall Street millionaires had put up $5,000,000 for erection of a Madison Square Garden, a new sports arena, under Rickard's direction.

From then on, Rickard rose to a position of autocrat in the world of fisticuffs. His word was mightier than that of boxing commission or of other authorities. He paid the piper and called the tune.

Born at Kansas City, Mo., Tex answered to the name of George Lewis Rickard until cow-punching in the Panhandle state brought him the nickname by which millions knew him.

In a reminiscent mood, Rickard liked to refer to the hardships of his days in the Yukon, where he towed a 100-pound pack on a sled through waist-deep snow with the temperature 60 below. He liked to chat of his earliest ventures in running a "square" gambling house in Nevada.

Tex "went broke" buying, working and selling claims within the Arctic Circle, doing day labor in the mines of Nevada and spinning his "square" wheel at Goldfield.

Then came the period of the Gans-Nelson fight in 1906. Tex staged the fight, paid the fighters record purses and "put the town on the map."

From that time on, as a promoter, Rickard went from one huge success to another. The most spectacular was the "battle of the century," in which Georges Carpentier lasted nearly four rounds with Jack Dempsey, and Rickard collected a "gate" of $1,626,580.

In 1927, a baby girl, Maxine, was born and became the pride of the promoter's life. But with his million dollars his yacht and Florida home and a certain tardy predilection for golf, Rickard scoffed at the rumors that he would retire.

"I expect to be here the rest of my life," he said recently in his office in Madison Square Garden.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 7.—Separated by a continent from the bier of the son she dearly loved, Mrs. L. J. Adams of Seattle, 81, mother of Tex Rickard, America's premier fight promoter who died yesterday in Miami Beach, Fla., bore up resolutely today under her burden of grief.

When notified yesterday by telegram of her son's death, Mrs. Adams brushed back the tears and murmured, "George was such a good boy to me."

Since the funeral has been set for Thursday in New York the family here will not be able to attend, Mrs. Adams said.

SHARKEY-STRIBLING BOUT NOW THROWN INTO UNCERTAINTY

Macon, Ga., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—The death of Tex Rickard has thrown the Sharkey-Stribling bout into uncertainty, Stribling said today. The father of the Georgia heavyweight believed it would take place "probably though. Still it won't be the same fight, because Rickard won't be there."

2nd WEEK OF BIG 10 CAGE GAMES

9 GAMES SET FOR NEXT SIX DAYS OF PLAY

SHOULD FUURNISH INDICATION OF HOW TEAMS WILL SHAPE UP

NORTHWESTERN HAS FAILED TO LIVE UP TO ITS EXPECTATIONS

By BERT DEMY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(UP)—The second week of the Big Ten basketball season opens tonight and the nine games scheduled for the next six days should be enough to furnish indication of how the teams will shape up in the final stagings.

The conference season proper began Saturday night and already one team has failed to live up to expectations. That team, Northwestern, had shown a fine scoring machine in preconference games but against Michigan Saturday night its offense was stopped almost at will. The Wolverines, led by Rose, their smallest forward, won 32-20.

The two co-champions of last year, Purdue and Indiana, are looked to for some good work. Purdue opened its season Saturday night with a comparatively easy 33-24 victory over Illinois. The Boilermakers have one of the best scorers in the conference in Harmeson, who started the season in the Illinois game by scoring seven field goals.

Indiana begins its conference season against Illinois tomorrow night and should have little trouble. The Hoosiers meet Minnesota Saturday in their other game of the week and apparently will be undefeated when they start harder games next week.

Michigan meets Wisconsin tonight and Iowa Saturday. The Wolverines doubtless will meet stiff opposition at Wisconsin, where there is a well balanced team.

The Badgers won 29-21 from Minnesota Saturday and demonstrated a passing attack which is hard to stop. Iowa looked good in its 34-26 victory over Ohio State Saturday.

In its other game of the week, Wisconsin comes to Chicago Saturday. The Badgers are given an edge in the pre-game selections.

Purdue plays Chicago Tuesday and entertains Northwestern Saturday.

In the other two games of the week, Ohio meets Northwestern here tonight and plays host to Illinois Saturday.

Northwestern rates favorite tonight but the Ohio-Illinois game appears to be a toss-up.

$20,000,000 HIGHWAY BOND ISSUE PLANNED

IS RECOMMENDED TO GOVERNOR CHRISTIANSON BY HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

IS PART OF BIENNIAL REPORT OF COMMISSIONER C. M. BABCOCK

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP) — The proposed $20,000,000 highway bond issue today was formally recommended to Governor Theodore Christianson by C. M. Babcock, highway commissioner.

The recommendation was contained in a list of legislative recommendations submitted as part of the biennial report of the highway department. In his recommendation Babcock pointed out that:

The bond issue was made necessary by the adoption in the general election of amendment No. 1, which diverted one-third of the gasoline tax from the state roads to the county roads.

A four-cent gasoline tax, imposed by other states and recommended by many persons for Minnesota, would not make possible a consistent paving or construction program.

Increae in the trunk highway fund revenues have not been proportionate of the increase in vehicle registrations nor to the increase in traffic burden.

Highway traffic has increased 103 per cent, from 332,652 vehicles in 1921 to 675,791 in 1928.

Use of the automobile is now a necessity while in 1921, the year the trunk highway plan went into effect, it still was considered almost a luxury.

Constrution, badly needed, must be curtailed as a result of changes in laws affecting state highway revenue, particularly amendment No. 1.

A $20,000,000 road bond issue, the maximum allowed in any biennium, woud result in paving of 1,000 miles of the most heavily travelled routes.

Savings of at least $1,000,000 annually in the state's maintenance bill by well planned paving.

Annual interest and sinking fund requirements on a $20,000,000 bond issue would be so small that there is no chance that such a bond issue would ever affect general taxes.

The highway commissioner also recommended the establishment of a highway patrol; the licensing of automobile dealers; and some sort of a distinguishing mark to be attached to automobiles of visiting motorists.

SPORT WORLD LOSES GEO. "TEX" RICKARD

MOST COLORFUL, PREDOMINANT FIGURE IN GAME

BODY BEING BROUGHT BACK TO SCENE OF HIS GREATEST TRIUMPHS

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 7. — The sport world has lost one of its most colorful and predominant figures in George L. (Tex) Rickard, who died early Sunday at Miami Beach, Florida, of infection following an operation for appendicitis.

Today, the body of the noted promoter, whose early life was one of unfettered romance and whose later years brought him unparalleled success as a master showman, was coming back to the scene of his greatest triumphs aboard a fast New York-bound express.

Pimples

If you want to get rid of ugly, disgusting pimples in a hurry, try the harmless new remedy, in a convenient tablet form, called Kitagran. It gets rid of the impurities in the blood so quickly that the skin clears up right away—often within 24 hours. You can get Kitagran from Johnson's Pharmacy, who will return your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied. —Advt

Zonite

For Cuts and Wounds

Prevent infection! Treat every cut, wound or scratch with this powerful non-poisonous antiseptic. Zonite actually kills germs. Helps to heal, too.

An Amazing Success

Feen-a-mint
The Chewing LAXATIVE
Chew It Like Chewing Gum

A pleasure to use. Very efficient. Children love it. No taste but that of sweet mint. The most popular laxative because it's a "satisfier." 15c and 25c.

Keep youth longer!

cleanse the system of poisons

Two of the great enemies to youth and vitality are delayed elimination and intestinal poisons. To keep yourself free from both these common difficulties will help you to stay young.

With the use of Nujol you can do it too. For Nujol absorbs body poisons and carries them off, preventing their absorption by the body. Nujol also softens the waste matter and brings about normal evacuation. It is harmless; contains no drugs or medicine. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys. Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.
